By a Gazette Extraordinary, issued on th 27th ultimo, the next session of the Assembly is further prorogued under the hand of His Excellency until the 15th day of June next. A Gazette of the 29th ult, contains regulations already under the "Protection to Animals Act," notified in these columns; notice that a fee of £5 5s shall be paid to Revising Barristers ap pointed under the Building Societies Act, 1876; notice of prohibition of importation of cattle, sheep, &c., from the Australian colonies; notice authorising the taking and laying down of a road in the Herctaunga block, Hawke's Bay; notice that H. C. Lawlor, Esq., has been appointed revising officer for the electoral dis tricts of Mongooui, Bay of Islands, Marsden, Rodney, Waitemata, City of Auckland East and West, Parnell, Newton, Unehunga, Eden, Franklin, Waipa, Waikato, and Thames.

Mr H. Menari, hospital wardsman, writes :-"To the Editor : Sir, -In justice to myself I trust you will allow me space in your columns to vindicate the action I took re the dispute about my application for an increase of salary as wardsman in the hospital. I again say that the said advance was promised me. I am quite aware that I labour under the difficulty of contending against a powerful opponent, but I trust that, having truth aud justice on my side, the public will at least acquit me of the charge of falsely accusing anybody."

"One swallow never makes a summer." Two of these birds we have been informed lately made their appearance at Mercury Bay. They were identified by Mr Wigmore, J.P., whose testimony was confirmed by that of his brother. The fact, if all grounds of mistake can be excluded. is noteworthy as determining some uncertain theories connected with the migration of birds. Ornithologists will be interested in tracing the probable wanderings of these migratory fellows. We believe that the Acclimatisation Society of Auckland has offered a reward of £50 to any person who will successfully introduce the Australian swallow into this province. If the statement above made be warranted by the authority of the observers, the event is certainly one of great scientific and agricultural interest. -Herald.

we should find some record left by people who might have gone there in the hope of meeting a sealing vessel. Upon landing, our interest was immediately excited by the strange sensation of finding ourselves surrounded by animals which evidently had not the slightest fear of men or their guns. Hundreds of seals, which were resting on the damp grass bordering on the stream, which at this point enters the sea, made no attempt to escape from us. The albatrosses also would not move from their nests on the ground. These magnificent birds-measuring, in several instances, 11 feet across the wings-only showed resistance when actually seized, and even then they did not seem to have any sense of danger. The bay was alive with birds. We observed the white and ooty albatross, petrels of various kinds, black hens, Cape pigeons, numerous galls, and a few wild duck; and the rocks were covered with seals and penguins. The hut was about 12 feet long, and contained six sleeping bunks. It was rudely constructed with staves of casks. I here was a stove inside on the right of the door, ingeniously made out of an old fish kettle; the funnel was formed by a series of small iron hoops nailed together. There were a number of empty casks outside, together with other debris, belonging to a sealing establishment. There were two whaleboats hauled up on the beach. One of these was useless ; the other, with some slight repairs, could be made sea-worthy. The name 'J. A. Brink' was cut on the door of the hut. We found no document or any signs of the bay having been lately visited." WHOLESALE MATRIMONY. A VERY curious procession took place East Second-street. They drew lots as to which couple should be excluded, and the hanless lovers who wara selected manifested their disappointment in a very lively manner. The Bishop consoled them by promising to marry them soon. The wedding ceremonies on Broomestreet were quite impressive. After the ceremony had been read, the older portion of the female audience, among whom there were many mothers of the brides and bridegrooms, burst into startling lamentations, while the grooms looked unconcerned, and the brides blushingly dropped their eyes. He maintained that if legal disabilities were imposed and intimidation practised a Republican form of government was not maintained, and he proposed to show by testimony taken the House Committee that both by conditions existed. Hurd held that as the constitution of South Carolina required registration of electors, and the requirement was utterly ignored, the election was roid. Hurd said the presence of troops overawed the people and prevented a free expression of their will.

THE SILVER COMMISSION.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26th .- The Tribune's Washington special says the silver commission holds its fine meeting to-day, and will present its report on Tuesday. The majority have agreed to recommend the adoption of the double standard, fix. ing the proportion at $15\frac{1}{2}$, the present standard of silver to gold being 16 to 1. The change is recommended to put the value of silver coin on the same basis as the coinage of European nations. The extent to which the silver dollar shall be received as legal tender is yet undecided, and it is uncertain what will be the decision of the commission on this point. Boutwoll will report in favour of a single gold standard, being in the minority of the commission.

PROPOSED REDUCTION OF THE ARMY. The Tribune's Washington special says The Army Appropriation Bill will be reported soon. It will provide for a reduction of the military force to 20,000. A section will be added forbidding the use of troops in any State election. Republicans are inclined to accept the reduction but oppose the latter section, and thus a compromise bill will probably be effected and an extra session of Congress will be unnecessary.

MRS. GAMP IN WESTLAND.

A YEAR ago a young lady, on arrival in Westland, was seized with what was sup-posed to be typhus fever, and the Arahura Board of Health took charge of the case, quarantining the patient and providing nurses for her at Stafford. It appears from the proceedings at a recent meeting of the Board that the debt they incurred, apart from the patient's own liabilities, amounted to £83 83 1d. The committee. whilst recommending the payment of the same, called attention to the shameful waste of provisions. Mr Sandle said that in three weeks two and a half cords of kiss their wives in public. wood, five bottles of brandy, thirty-three bottles of ale, and eighteen bottles of porter had been consumed. The account was passed. As the patient was for a considerable part of the time delirious. the consumption of these quantities is only explained by the suggestion that her Sairey Gamp had been often "so dispoged," or that some other attendant had imulated the example of the hotel-waiter who so amicably 'assisted' David Copperfield at dinner.

In an article on the Public Works Policy, the Lyttclion Times takes rather a gloomy view of the future of the railways of the Colony. It says :- The crucial time of trial of our railways is approaching. The novelty of travelling by is wearing off, and the number of passen gers induced by that motive alone to travel is The rapid ebb of the tide diminishing. public expenditure of borrowed money, the fall of wool, excess of speculation, and other causes, have, more or less, dried up the available sur plus cash of most persons; and railway travelling, unless absolutely necessary, is one of the luxuries in which economy is practised. But a time of depression contracts external and inter nal trade, and, therefore, acts unfavourably on railway business. If, in addition to these obstacles which are threatening and even commeucing to combine in opposition to the progress of our Railway Policy, it is found that owing to want of care or want of knowledge serious errors of construction, or serious defects in material, are producing a heavy crop of un-foreseen expenditure, the result will be disastroug. We will not go out of our way to anticipate evil, but we hear from different quarters enough to justify grave apprehensions on this subject. In the meantime the official over estimate of railway revenue for this year does not tend to allay anxiety. It is actually so much deficiency in revenue, and together with deficiencies not less in amount affecting other main sources of revenue, will subject the

A NERVOUS ACTRESS.

LAFEBBIEBE, says a French journal, has been playing 'The Poor Idiot' in the Provinces. At one small town the stock company was very nervous about playing with the great star, especially a hapless woman who was cast for the mother and with whom Laferriere has the crack scene of the piece. It is in the fifth act, at the moment that the idiot begins to recognise and distinguish the persons that surround him : then she rushes to him. and, folding him in her arms, shrieks :

' My son, I am your mother !'

At every rehearsal Laferriereencouraged her. 'Don't be nervous,' he would say; keep cool. All you have to do is to cry, 'My son, I am your mother,' and embrace me. 'Oh yes, but, M. Laferriere, I am so frightened to play with you." All went well throughout the first four acts, and in the wait before the fifth Laferriere went to the actress's dressing room to cheer her.

'Keep a stiff upperlip,' he said, cheer. fully; 'you know what you have to do. The whole play leads up that scene. I reckon on you. 'My son, I am your mother ;' and embrace me.'

'Yes, yes; 'My son, I am your mo-ther!' I shall not forget.'

Laferriere was The curtain rose. playing with even more than his furious rigor. The crisis came and the lady clasped him to her bosom.

'Now, then,' he whispered encouragingly ; then, taking up his part, yelled : 'Who is the woman ? Who Who is she?'

'My mother! I am your son!' gasped the actress; then she shricked. Laferriere had made his teeth meet through her arm.
